Teaching Tip 395 | "Your Voice Matters" - Tips for new and inexperienced speakers. A reminder." | Malcolm Cox

For those starting to preach or teach, it can be a confusing experience.

Imagine a young sailor setting out to sea for the first time. They have the boat, the sails, and the wind at their back, but without the wisdom of seasoned sailors, they risk being lost in the vastness of the ocean. Your tips are like the stars on their map—small but crucial lights that guide them safely to their destination.

By sharing your insights, you're helping inexperienced speakers navigate their journey with confidence and clarity. Even one small piece of advice can be the star that someone needs to find their way.

This is a final reminder to share your top three tips for new and inexperienced preachers and teachers. The deadline is fast approaching, and I'd love to include your wisdom in the upcoming video series starting in January 2025.

Your input can make a real difference in equipping the next generation of speakers. It's quick and easy—just reply with one to three simple, actionable tips.

Thank you to everyone who has already contributed—it's shaping up to be a fantastic resource!

Looking forward to hearing from you.
